

SCOUTS PREPARE FOR RECEIPT OF EAGLE EMBLEMS

Presentation to Occur Sunday Afternoon at County Court House

HEAR JUDGE KELLER

His Honor Delivers Annual Address to Honored Lads

DOYLESTOWN, Feb. 11.—President Judge Hiram H. Keller in Court Room No. 2 gave a "decision on citizenship" that will linger a long time in the memory of the five Eagle Scout applicants who appeared before him today to receive his annual address given to the Boy Scouts who are to receive the highest Boy Scout award. The Scouts will be presented with their Eagle Scout badge Sunday afternoon, in court room No. 1, at 2:30.

Judge Keller said: "Good citizenship concerns the relation of man with his fellow man. Its requisites are an open mind, a generous heart, a willingness to see the good in others and reluctance to doubt their motives. The good citizen is a good neighbor, one who is concerned in his community's interests, and who seeks to add something to the physical well-being of his city and country. A man becomes a citizen in the true sense of the word only when he recognizes his responsibility to his government and to his community. He is always ready to share his city's burdens, cherish its interests, support its institutions, protect its good name, and contribute to the richness of its life."

"Ideal citizenship implies broad-mindedness, generosity, tolerance with the faults of others, optimism which puts to shame the critics of honest effort and enemies of progress, and a mind ever open to investigate any proposal for the good of the community. An ideal citizen is one who does not tolerate icy sidewalks, keep a savage dog, to permit weeds to go to seed and blow into his neighbor's garden. The ideal citizen applies the principles of equality and justice to his business and social relations. He believes that while all cannot have the same wealth or education, yet all should be allowed the right to earn a competency and to use our educational institutions so far as in their power."

"The American citizen is above all American; he has a confident pride, a patriotism for the land of his birth that is above all criticism and ridicule. He can afford to indulge a generous attitude to the world without the temptations to jealousy which usually characterize the citizens of smaller and weaker nations. For him our flag has a meaning which is synonymous with honor and dignity; he can be loyal to it without stretching his conscience or warping his judgment. He lives, not as the citizen of some countries, in the hope of a revolution or change in government, but in a belief and trust in the enduring qualities on which his nation is founded."

President of the Boy Scout Council Thomas Ross met the applicants, and spoke to them on their community responsibility. Mr. Ross emphasized, "Your community needs your help—it is not a job, it is an opportunity. If you volunteer to do something—do it, and never shrink. Your progress in Scouting has been by a considerable amount of effort, and you owe it to yourself, and your community to step forward to help in your community life. Do not let temptations draw you away from your Scout Oath, and Scout Law. Never forget there must have been a Divine Being that gave forth the Spark of Life. Be reverent towards God, and be faithful in your religious duty."

The five Scouts appearing for the Eagle Scout Review were Frederick H. Clymer, Jr., Doylestown No. 1; Edward Conroy, Sellersville; George Godown, Riegelsville; Thomas Purcell, Morrisville No. 3; Assistant Scoutmaster Charles Young, Flushing. The Eagle Scout review board consisted of Scout Executive William F. Livermore, Carl Leidy, Doylestown, and William Adams, Riegelsville.

The public is cordially invited to attend the presentations on Sunday. It is suggested that it would be advisable to be early to secure a comfortable seat. Last year on one of the most stormy days of the year the Court of Honor was packed so that there was not standing room.

High Scores in Cards Is Awarded to Robert Forgo

A card party was held last evening in F. P. A. Hall, given by Daughters of America, Council 55. Mrs. Roy Ott was chairlady.

Fifteen tables of players were arranged and prizes awarded. Five highest contestants were: Robert Forgo, 847; H. M. Forgo, 761; Mrs. S. Stewart, 758; Joseph Gallagher, 753; Lamont White, 745.

Refreshments were served.

SOME SIDELIGHTS ON PENNA. LEGISLATURE

It is Still Necessary to Flash Ticket to Get Into Senate

SCHOLARSHIP QUESTION

HARRISBURG, Feb. 11.—(INS)—A lot of water has gone over the dam since those November days when Pennsylvania heard charges of trafficking in legislative scholarships. It seemed for a time that a big bubble was going to burst violently into an investigation of the alleged auction block.

Now, the affair will be conveniently forgotten. Such deliberate absent-mindedness, however, is not considered a reflection on the Senators, who are granted college scholarships for distribution. They feel there is nothing to be gained by making a fuss and that certain legislators were guilty of nothing more than possibly a little carelessness.

"They're a nuisance," said one Senator of the scholarships. "But occasionally we get some genuine satisfaction out of helping a really deserving young person through college."

After three weeks, it's still necessary to flash a ticket to get into the hall of the House. The Senate hasn't found it necessary to enforce similar rules.

Lieut. Gov. E. C. Shannon, who resides in the upper branch, is a soldier at heart. One flash of discipline came from him early in the session. Two re-elected Senators were taking the oath of office. A couple of women in the rear of the chamber were paying scant heed to anything but their own conversation. Recitation of the oath had started, but General Shannon

Williams Granted Another Court Trial

Harold Williams, Bucks County farmer, tossed aside his chance for a third trial for the murder of his brother-in-law yesterday.

He pleaded guilty. And for his admission of the crime he asked mercy from the court.

After the ordeal of two previous trials by jury in which the result was the same in both cases—condemnation to the electric chair—Williams placed his fate directly in the hands of a Philadelphia court yesterday. He asked the lesser of two punishments for his deed—life imprisonment.

And his plea for clemency was given the extraordinary and sensational backing by no other than his prosecutor, District Attorney Charles F. Kelley.

Williams' future now rests, not on the consciences of 12 of his peers, but with three judges. Otto R. Heilgman, James Gay Gordon, Jr., and Eugene V. Alessandrini.

TO ATTEND REUNION

Misses Gertrude Hanson, Pond street; Eleanor Finney, Croydon; Doris Hendricks, Cedar street, and May VanDoren, Walnut street, will attend Camp Arcola reunion of Girl Reserves, this evening at the Y. W. C. A. Arch Street, Philadelphia. A dinner will be followed by basketball game and dancing. These young women attended the camp last summer.

Mrs. Jesse Bilbee, and Miss Margaret Daugherty, who served refreshments.

BOY SCOUTS INVITED TO ATTEND SERVICE IN BRISTOL M. E. CHURCH, REV. C. HOWELL WILL DELIVER SERMON UPON "LINCOLN'S GREAT FAITH"

"Much Said About Deflation of Prices, But Nothing About Deflation of Spirit," Pastor Says — "Inspiration of Sanctuary Necessary to Sustain Living Faith"

The Boy Scouts have been invited to the Sunday evening service at Bristol M. E. Church. At that time, the minister, the Rev. Clarence Howell, will speak upon "Lincoln's Great Faith." Special music will include an anthem, "Thou hast been our Defense" (Sullivan), and a solo, selected.

By special request the minister will preach on "Eternal Punishment" at the morning service. Music will include: Anthem, "Fear Not, O Israel" (Spicker), and "You Can Smile" by the Junior choir.

"Much is being said and written about deflation of prices but nothing is being said generally about deflation of spirit," states the Rev. Howell. "To prevent such a condition we need the inspiration, uplift, and blessing of the sanctuary in order to sustain a living faith."

The Church School session is at 9:45 a. m. with classes for all ages; Epworth League service, 6:45 p. m.

Meetings for the week will be: Wednesday, 7:00 p. m., junior choir rehearsal; 7:45 p. m., prayer and praise service, with a devotional message that will help; Thursday, 7:00 p. m., Boy Scouts and Junior Epworth League; Thursday, 8:00 p. m., choir rehearsal, also Woman's Home Missionary Society will hold its monthly meeting, and a covered dish supper. The mite boxes are to be returned at this meeting.

NEWTOWN COUNCIL CUTS TOWN'S TAX RATE

One Mill Reduction is Given By the Borough Authorities

SCHOOL BOARD TO ACT

NEWTOWN, Feb. 11.—In session, Borough Council reduced the tax rate one mill. The borough tax rate has steadily declined from a 10-mill rate in 1930 to six mills for the coming year.

The rate is now back to where it was in 1911. In 1931, Council made the first reduction to 9 mills and in 1932 the rate was placed at 7 mills and now 6 mills. With the County Commissioners reducing their rate to 4 mills, the combined county and borough tax now is the same as the borough tax was in 1930.

The school board last year was able to drop a mill from the fifteen-mill levy. Even at that the 14 mill rate is one and two-fifths times the borough and county rate and in addition there is a $5 per capita tax. While the school board does not set its rate until later it is expected to help cut the taxpayers by making a substantial reduction in both the millage rate and the per capita tax.

Every street in the borough has been given a hard surface and every other year stone and oil resurfacing is applied. The streets are well-lighted. The town is given adequate fire protection. Health is protected by garbage and trash collections and the Straus is also mentioned.

PRINCIPAL TELLS OF DUTIES OF EDUCATION

Warren P. Snyder Speaks Before Fathers' Association Members

MENTIONS ACTIVITIES

Duties and theories of education were gone into by Warren P. Snyder, principal of Bristol high school, when he spoke to the Fathers' Association at its monthly meeting Thursday evening in the high school auditorium.

Mr. Snyder's speech follows:

"The first duty of education is to teach people to do better the desirable things that they are going to do anyway. Another duty is to reveal higher types of activities and to make them both desired and to an extent possible. The main function of the school through the ages has been to create good citizens. 'Good Citizens' has meant different things at different times among different peoples. To some peoples it has meant brave and efficient soldiers; to others, individuals well versed in art, music, and the so-called cultural subjects; still to others, it has meant not only individuals who could support themselves vocationally, but who could also take an interest in the welfare of their community and country, although such an interest did not benefit them financially. But no matter what the ideals of the people have been, the school has been looked upon as the maker of citizens who could take their place in the existing state of affairs."

"Theories of Education: 1. That knowledge is synonymous with education. According to this the memorizing of facts is the main process of education. Before days of printing; formal discipline. (Continued on Page 2)

Mennonites and Union Reach An Agreement

DOYLESTOWN, Feb. 11.—A solution was reached yesterday by the Mennonites of Bucks County and representatives of the clothing workers' union, regarding the Mennonites becoming affiliated with the union.

The decision reached is that the Mennonite workers will pay the $1 initiation fee each, and 30 cents per week will be taken from their pay for the dues in the union.

The group will not, however, be required to sign as union members, and will not have to pledge themselves to go on strike if the union calls a walk-out.

Bishops of the Franconia Conference of Mennonites met at the home of the Rev. Abram O. Clemmer at Franconia to talk over plans which were agreed to by employers and union officials. At the meeting were: Rev. A. O. Hisland, Doylestown; Rev. Warren Bean, Creamery; Rev. Jonas Mininger, Harleysville; and Rev. Arthur Ruth, Line Lexington.

The situation grew out of the fact that small clothing plants in Montgomery and Bucks counties were forced to close, and given the alternative of remaining closed or unionizing their employees. Philadelphia and New York manufacturers refused to give them contracts unless the plants were unionized.

The employers capitulated. But they found the Mennonite workers, comprising a large percentage of the several thousand employees, could not under the tenets of their church, join the union. These workers, mostly earning $15 to $20 a week, faced starvation as an alternative.

Already more than 1000 men and women in Sellersville, Perkasie, Blooming Glen, Line Lexington and Doylestown are back at work. The rest are expected to return soon.

HUNT FOR GUNMAN

Chicago, Ill., Feb. 11.—Former Alderman Stanley Walkowsky, wealthy attorney, aided police today in their search for three gunmen who invaded his home last night and escaped with $25,000 in cash and $3000 in jewelry after binding Walkowsky and his family to chairs.

The bandit trio gained entrance by stating they wished to consult the former alderman on a legal matter. Once inside they produced revolvers and tied Walkowsky's son and a nephew to chairs in a bedroom. Mrs. Walkowsky entered the house during the robbery and fainted. Then she was also tied up with wire.

STORM IMPEDES TRAFFIC; CAUSES AUTO ACCIDENT

Three Riding in Car Injured When Parked Truck Is Struck

WORKERS KEPT BUSY

A snow-storm which started during the night and piled up to a depth of several inches by daybreak impeded traffic and during the early hours this morning held traffic almost at a standstill.

One automobile accident was reported due to the storm, three people being injured.

The accident occurred as a party of four, riding in a sedan, were said to be enroute toward Morrisville this morning at 3:15.

The injured are: George Wetherill, Doylestown, driver, abrasions of the left eye; Miss Ruth Crawford, Croydon, abdominal injuries, bruises of right clavicle, and abrasions of right leg and left knee; Miss Anna May Moran, Croydon, brush burns of left leg and head; John Whitaker, 703 Spruce street, Bristol, another passenger, was unhurt.

The accident is said to have occurred when due to weather conditions, Wetherill, operating a sedan owned by his mother, crashed into a parked truck on the Lincoln Highway in Morrisville. The three were treated at Harriman Hospital, where Miss Crawford remains to await result of X-ray pictures.

The snow began falling near midnight and followed on the heels of a cold wave.

The storm started gradually but within an hour and a half it had increased in intensity.

Highway workers were called out and the snow plows were put into operation to clear the highways for traffic.

Employees of the P. R. R. Company were summoned and put to work clearing station platforms and opening switches.

The snow was preceded by a rise in involuntary manslaughter, drunken driver and numerous other liquor law violations are among the 39 cases listed for trial at the February term of criminal court of Bucks county, starting Monday morning, when the Grand Jury will convene.

Trial by traverse jury will get under way the week of February 20. There are 36 new cases and three continued cases on the unusually small trial list for the February term. This small list is due to the disposition of a number of "plead guilty" cases during the past week.

Charles Arnwine, 25-year-old Newtown foundry worker, will go on trial Thursday morning, February 23, for the murder of 15-year-old Frances Kemper, Newtown High School sophomore and church organist, before President Judge Hiram H. Keller in Court Room No. 1. The case will be prosecuted by District Attorney Arthur M. Eastburn.

The married Lathario and father of three children, has been in the Bucks County Prison since he was arrested by County Detective Antonio Russo on a charge preferred by the father of the murdered girl before the body of the attractive high school student was found under an old mattress in a thicket not far from the girl's home.

J. Leslie Kilcoyne, of Bristol, former Assistant District Attorney of Bucks county, who was appointed by the Court to defend Arnwine, said at his office in Bristol this morning that his client "is in good spirits, is anything but sulky, and is anxious to have the trial get under way."

Arnwine has not been visited by anyone but his attorney since his incarceration of the County Prison.

"He has not given us any trouble," Head Keeper Grant Myers, of the County Prison, said this morning. "He never mentions his case. He spends most of his time smoking cigarettes and reading books and magazines. He sleeps well and apparently shows no outward signs of being sorry for anything."

That he held a weird, Svengali-like power over his victim, against which she was powerless, is the startling theory that has grown out of the murder of the Remper girl. Arnwine confessed the crime after being questioned and declared that it was the result of a suicide pact, which authorities do not believe.

Mr. Kilcoyne remained silent today when asked on what theory the defense would be developed.

Police, who will be called as the witnesses in the murder case, also scoff at the suicide pact theory, it being their contention that Arnwine lured the girl to the midnight love tryst to silence her forever. He had been warned by the victim's father, Charles Kemper, to keep away from Frances, but continued to exercise a strange fascination for her.

Intimates of the murdered girl, following the killing, told of strange power wielded over her by the rustic Romeo. To the townspeople of Newtown, Frances was known as a demure, good-living girl, who was popular with all who knew her.

Judge Keller, before whom the case

ISLANDS SPURN FREEDOM

Proposals in Congress that the Virgin Islands and other American possessions be granted their independence were a natural outcome of the freeing of the Philippines. There are in every group persons who measure all things by the same stick.

Although the United States paid $25,000,000 for three of the 50 islands it owns, it does not prize them and would be only too glad to give them away. President Hoover has described them as an "effective poorhouse."

The hitch is that the islanders do not want to be separated from the United States. They can discover in independence no prospects of being any less miserable and suspect that their state might become more wretched under home rule.

There are about a hundred islands in this group, which was discovered by Columbus. There is a legend that the explorer ran out of names when he attempted to christen them all after saints. The islands of St. Croix, St. Thomas and St. John the United States acquired from Denmark in 1917. Two others were acquired from Spain. The British-owned islands, numbering 32, have a total population of 5,000 while the 50 American islands have a much larger population, inhabitants of the three largest numbering 22,000.

These islands and the Philippines illustrate the difference between the American psychology and that of the Japanese. Here is a British possession at the very portals of the United States which never gives the American people a moment's concern, while the Japs have lived in constant fear ever since the Philippines were acquired by Uncle Sam.

LAND OF CHARITY

Long after the hardships and anxieties of this depression are forgotten the spirit of mutual helpfulness which it awakened in the American people will be remembered. Never before has the world known such generosity and charity.

In six cities a total of $176,008, 914 was contributed last year for philanthropic purposes. Contributions to all organized charities throughout the country last year probably exceeded a half billion dollars.

The fact that only half as much was publicly subscribed for charitable purposes in 1932 as in 1931 does not prove that the will to give was weaker, or that less was given to the needy. The people had less than half as much with which to give last year, and yet they gave more if government relief and direct charity are taken into consideration.

While welfare agencies and charitable institutions were doing a wonderful work among the jobless and their families, virtually every person with any income at all was engaged in daily works of charity. Millions of unemployed persons have been provided for by relatives and neighbors. And few pockets are closed to the outstretched palm although such petitions come several times daily. Sidewalk charity must run up into amazing figures in the course of one hard times year.

To those who have not shall be given in America.

SYNOPSIS

In 1690, following the death of Sir John Harradine, Captain-General of the Leeward Isles, his beautiful daughter, Priscilla, leaves for England aboard the "Centaur", accompanied by the pompous, middle-aged Major Sands, her father's aide, who seeks Priscilla's hand and fortune. The Major resents Priscilla's interest in their fellow passenger, Charles de Bernis, fascinating and mysterious Frenchman, and seeks in vain to belittle him. De Bernis wants to disembark at Guadeloupe, but Captain Bransome refuses to go to that pirate-infested port and offers to drop him at Sainte Croix instead. Learning that the handsome Frenchman once sailed with Henry Morgan, the notorious buccaneer, now Governor of Jamaica, Major Sands calls De Bernis a pirate, adding that Morgan and his cut-throats were just bloodthirsty, thieving scoundrels. Morgan, however, had given up preying on ships to enter his King's employ and rid the sea of pirates. In spite of Morgan's endeavors, a few still eluded him and the authorities suggested he might be playing a double game and receiving tribute from those still at large. Morgan has offered a large reward for the capture of Tom Leach, a brutal, remorseless scoundrel, who sails the Caribbean in a powerful ship, "The Black Swan" . . . wreaking havoc.

CHAPTER NINE

Well might Captain Bransome have uttered his prayer that this evil villain should soon come to moorings in execution dock. The following morning was to bring him the urgent dread that, if the prayer was to be answered at all, it was not likely to be answered in time to be of profit to the Centaur.

Going early on deck to take the air and summon his fellow passengers to breakfast, Monsieur de Bernis found the Captain on the poop, leveling a telescope at a ship some three or four miles away to eastward on their starboard quarter. Beside him stood Major Sands in his burnt-red coat and Miss Priscilla very demurely in a gown of velvet-green with ivory lace that revealed the lissom beauty of her milk-white neck.

The wind which had veered to the north had freshened a little since dawn, and swept the ship with a grateful coolness. With top-sails furled, and a considerable list to leeward, the Centaur was rippling through the sea on a course almost due west. She was still some leagues south-east of St. Aves, and land was nowhere in sight.

The master lowered his telescope as de Bernis came up. Turning his head, and seeing the Frenchman, he first pointed with the glass, then proffered it.

"Tell me what you make of her, Monsieur," de Bernis took the glass. He had not observed the grave look in Bransome's eyes, for he displayed no ungainly in complying. He passed first to exchange a greeting with Miss Priscilla and the Major. But when at last he kept the glass to his eye, he kept it there for an unconscionable time. When he lowered it, his countenance reflected the gravity worn by the Captain. Even then he did not speak. He stepped deliberately to the rail, and setting his elbows on the side for steadiness, levelled the glass once more. This time his observations were even more protracted.

He scanned the tall black hull of that distant ship and the black beak-head carved in the shape of a swan with a gilded crest. He attempted to count the gun ports on her leeward flank as far as this was revealed by the course she was steering. With the same leisureliness he surveyed the mountain of canvas under which she moved, with every sail unfurled, and above which flew no flag.

So long was he in this inspection that at last the Captain's hand-held patience slipped from him. "Well, sir? Well? What d'ye make of her?"

Monsieur de Bernis lowered the glass again, and faced his questioner. He was calm and smiling. "A fine, powerful ship," he said casually, and turned to the cabin. "Bransome waits in the others."

The Major, whose appetite was never feigned, required no further invitation. He departed, taking Miss Priscilla with him.

As they disappeared into the gangway leading aft, the smile left the face of Monsieur de Bernis. Solemnly his long dark eyes met the Captain's uneasily questioning glance.

"I desired not to alarm the lady. It is as I think you already suspect. Tom Leach's ship, The Black Swan."

"You're certain?"

"As certain as that she's steering to cross your course."

The Captain swore in his red beard. "And this on my last voyage!" he complained. "Fate might have let me end my sailing days in peace. Ye think . . . D'ye think she means to attack me?"

Monsieur de Bernis shrugged. "It is Tom Leach. And he steers to cross your course."

The Captain fell to ranting and swearing as a man will who is spirited and yet conscious of impotence when beset. "The black-hearted, blackguardly swine! What's your divine Henry Morgan doing to leave him loose upon the seas? What for did the King knight him and make him Governor of Jamaica?"

"Sir Henry will get him in the end. Be sure of that."

The Frenchman's calm in the face of this overwhelming peril

"2. Knowledge and practice go together. Talking about being good or being a 'good citizen' will not bring the desired results. It is impossible to be good apart from doing good acts. It is possible to be a good citizen only through doing the acts the good citizen does."

"It seems, therefore, that it would be reasonable to help the student to become conscious of his ideals, then provide situations in which the ideals would be forced to function. 'Practice makes perfect.' But practice may make perfect in the thing we do not wish him to do. Therefore, the functioning of the ideals must be watched, criticized, corrected, sponsored."

"Extra-curricular activities in developing the citizen because they offer so many opportunities for this practice of desired ideals."

"The main objectives of extra-curricular activities may be stated as follows: 1. To prepare the student for life in a democracy. His earlier life is restricted—by parents and teachers. He must be because he is not born an adequate social being. Consequently he must be made to do certain things in a certain way."

"2. To make him increasingly self-directive. Democracy requires this. Not a matter of many ideals but of much proper practice. Self-control. Failure in conduct is often due to failure in placing responsibilities on pupils. If the earlier responsibilities are not always successful, the act is sometimes condemned. In this the adult fails to see that again he is dealing with an immature person who can only benefit by adequate practice."

"3. To teach co-operation. To get along with one another."

"4. To increase the interest of the student in the school. Holding power of the school. First 35 years, 304 graduates, average nine per year; next 12 years, 485 graduates, average 40 per year. During the last 12 years many activities were added."

"5. Law and order. Must come from within and not by fear. The activity fails or succeeds as he acts."

"6. To develop special abilities. Here the emphasis is changed from subject to student."

Mr. Snyder enumerated the activities at the Bristol school as follows: Athletic—Varsity, junior varsity and interclass football; interclass soccer; varsity and interclass hockey; varsity and junior varsity basketball for boys and girls; interclass boys and girls and consolation tournament; boys and girls' varsity and interclass track; boys' varsity and interclass baseball; "gym" team.

Play, coached by the school, with the dances, music, costumes and staging for the opera being in charge of the school. The group was told of the home room organization and council with representation by rooms of members at large. Clubs mentioned were debate, traffic, junior and senior jazz clubs, orchestra, girl reserves, spelling, crafts, commercial, language, dramatic, all being sponsored by teachers.

The organization of the Rambler Staff was referred to, honor point system mentioned, banking and financing gone into, as well as assembly activities.

Arrwine Trial Not To Be Made A Show States Judge Keller is scheduled for trial, has already stated that he does not intend to allow "a show to be made of the Arrwine trial" was made during a recent trial in Norristown.

Because of the wide-spread interest in the case however, it is likely that the trial will be "covered" by the largest array of newspaper men and women ever assigned to a murder trial in Bucks county. Telegraph and telephone companies have installed extra equipment to handle the press copy and local hotel reservations for the week of the trial have been booked in advance by a number of newspaper reporters.

Another trial of interest scheduled for the February term is that of Dr. Bertha Guild, whose farm in Haycock township was raided in January when 500 gallons of corn sugar mash and 500 gallons of alcohol was seized. Dr. Guild, formerly employed, she says, by the State Health Department, is charged with the manufacture and possession of intoxicating liquor.

Justice of the Peace Norman H. Moore, of South Langhorne, is also scheduled for trial, the last case on the list. He is charged with forcible entry and malicious mischief.

Sixteen different defendants are charged with violations of the liquor laws, while five others are charged with operating an automobile while under the influence of intoxicating liquor.

Some Sidelights On Penna. Legislature

"Stand up, please, you in the back."

They were on their feet before he finished the command.

The Governor's wife committed a pardonable error recently in the lobby of a local hotel. Entering with her husband to attend a banquet, she greeted those she knew while waiting for the elevator.

One man failed to respond to her warm "How do you do?"

"Well, aren't you going to speak to me?" Mrs. Pinchot asked.

The gentleman, a few paces away, tipped his hat and made a weak, bashful attempt to curtsy in his confusion. "Isn't that so-and-so?" Mrs. Pinchot asked of a friend at her side. The answer was negative.

She had thought the man was an attaché of the Governor's office whom she knew. Mrs. Pinchot concealed any embarrassment she may have had, but the abashed stranger took a fine "ribbing" from some of his male friends who witnessed the incident.

If there's a crowd, consider the trio of women legislators in the House, a Republican, a Democrat, and a Socialist. . . . Miss Pinchot, the Democrat, broke into the legislative journal with a motion to adjourn. . . . She's rapidly being acclimated and is making a bid for a prominent role in the House deliberations. . . . Press Association men who were positive but couldn't say flatly that the Governor would veto any primary repeal bill can say so now. . . . They believe, too, the repealer will never reach him but can't prove it and therefore can't say it. . . . There are eight physicians in the Assembly. . . . It's easier to find standing room in the Senate after the Dauphin member speaks his Monday night speech. . . . The two chaplains lost their jobs soon after the 1932 session started and were replaced. . . . The Senate's new minister prayed to the newspapers in his first invocation.

Astor Scion Rumored Betrothed to Daughter of Italian Prince wedding of John Jacob Astor, 3rd, of Titanic Scholastic, to Donna Cristiana Torlonia Scheduled for April, Say Gossips, Despite Family Denials.

Despite denials of Mrs. Elsie Moore Torlonia, American mother of Donna Cristiana Torlonia, society gossips are persistent in declaring that the wedding of the Italian-American beauty to John Jacob Astor, 3rd, of THE Astors, will take place early in April. It was recently reported by Luisa Maria Camperio, daughter of Admiral Camperio, of the Italian navy, in a letter to her father that she had been invited to be a maid of honor at the nuptials. Young Astor, a son of John Jacob Astor, who perished in the Titanic disaster, and Mrs. William K. Dick, will come into an inheritance of $3,000,000 on August 14, when he will have attained the age of 21. Donna Cristiana, not yet 20, met Astor at a fashionable resort in the Italian Alps last year, soon after she had been introduced to New York society. The girl's father, from whom her mother has been divorced for several years, is Prince Torlonia, member of one of Italy's noblest families. Donna Cristiana is blonde and blue-eyed and a devotee of outdoor sports. She has frequently been seen in company of young Astor's mother, Mrs. William K. Dick, at American and European resorts favored by the elite.

NEW YORK. . . .—Society has turned its back upon Ernest Hemingway for the nonce and turned to Shakespeare. Hamlet's immortal "to be or not to be" seems to be the most popular quotation of the moment. Not that society is going literary. It is merely trying to find an answer to the debated question as to whether or not John Jacob Astor, 3rd, scion of THE Astors, is going to marry Donna Cristiana Torlonia, daughter of Prince Torlonia of Rome.

Rumors of an engagement between young Astor and the Italian-American beauty have been circulating in society circles for many months, but there was nothing definite until recently when the cat was let out of the bag by Admiral Camperio, Italian Navy (retired).

The Admiral, who recently returned to Milan from America, is said to have received a letter from his daughter, Luisa Maria, now in Annapolis, Md., in which the girl told her parent that she had been invited to act as maid of honor at the marriage of Miss Torlonia to John J. Astor, which is scheduled to take place in April.

However, Mrs. Elsie Moore Torlonia, mother of the supposedly-engaged young lady, was quick to announce an emphatic denial of the reported betrothal. Mrs. Torlonia, who divorced the Prince several years ago, is at present with her daughter at Miami, Fla.

Young Astor met Donna Cristiana last summer at Cortina D'Ampezzo, fashionable resort in the Italian Alps. They found they had much in common, both being devoted adherents of the outdoors. They danced, hiked, played tennis and rode horseback together constantly. And what was more natural than that they should fall in love?

Well, that's the story of rumor and counter rumor, which brings us back to the first paragraph, "to be or not to be." For it isn't every day that an Astor takes that important step towards the altar.

SPORTS

BOSTON RED SOX MAY
AGAIN BE DOOR MAT

(This is the ninth of a series of sixteen articles by Pat Robinson analyzing the major league baseball clubs and outlining their prospects for the season.)

By Pat Robinson

I. N. S. Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—(INS)—The Boston Red Sox may again be the door mat of the American League, but the chief difference this year is there will be no "Welcome" on the mat. In other words, the Sox will be a little tougher for the others to kick around.

The pitching may be a little better and the hitting should improve in spots. But otherwise it is hard to note any improvement with the naked eye.

Several of the Red Sox might have been the young men of whom Migue Gonzales, the ancient Cuban catcher, once said, "Plenty field, no hit," and of others Migue might have said, "Plenty hit, no field."

The pitching staff might be called untried and yet it has possibilities. The infield isn't too good, the catching just fair, and the outfield so-so.

Smead Jolley is listed as a catcher. Well, he certainly wasn't an outfielder and the experiment of turning him into a backstop should at least be an interesting failure.

Dale Alexander, one of the glue-footed members of the team, may lead the League again in hitting but he is no Hal Chase on first base.

Johnson, Oliver and perhaps Winsett may do fairly well with Fothergill to pinch hit now and then.

Paul Andrews may develop into a great pitcher. The temperamental Hank Johnson could win. Kline is fair and Michaels, Rhodes and Welland may improve.

As it shapes up now, the team may be pegged for a nice berth in the basement.

YARDLEY

The fourth quarterly conference of the official board, Yardley M. E. Church, was held this week in the Sunday School room, Dr. A. M. Witter, district superintendent, conducted the conference, and the board unanimously asked for the return of the present pastor, Rev. B. Warner Shay.

WE WENT up to the Fathers' Association meeting Thursday evening to hear Harvey Harmon, head football coach of the University of Pennsylvania, give a gridiron talk to the members and friends of the school association. We were struck by the size of the fellow. He is a powerfully built man with a pair of broad shoulders that would look well on any wrestler.

He has a personality that is bound to make a hit anywhere he goes. It's no wonder that his charges on the Penn Squad play their heads off for him.

Mr. Harmon held the interest of everyone present while he had the floor with a lot of funny stories and good philosophy. He impressed with the manner in which he recited poetry. Usually when one has to listen to poetry they become bored very easily. But Harmon had a way with him that put him in solid with his audience.

While in town Harmon renewed acquaintance with one of his old friends. The Rev. S. Brooks Knowlton, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, who was a student at Haverford College while Harvey was coaching at that institution.

So strong was the friendship formed between these two men that Harmon acted as an usher at the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Knowlton. Mr. Harmon while a student at Pittsburgh University made the All-American team as tackle two years in succession. The coach of Pitt at the time was the great "Pop" Warner, who has just signed a five-year contract to coach the football squad at Temple University.

It will be interesting to watch the progress the coach and his former pupil make with the two leading university football teams in Philadelphia next fall.

WHAT IS THE HOME TOWN LEAGUE

And Why Should YOU Support It?

The HOME TOWN LEAGUE is simply defined: It is an association of progressive retail merchants in your home town, who have banded together in a common cause. Representing all lines of business - - groceries, drugs, clothing, hardware, meats - - they have organized to help this community - - YOUR community - - by buying and selling the products of those manufacturers who, directly or indirectly, help this town.

You have some money to spend. You have to spend money to live. Spend it, by all means, HERE - - in your own home town! And spend it in the stores which have the emblem of the HOME TOWN LEAGUE displayed. They offer you the opportunity to buy the products of the manufacturers who buy from us. They give you a chance to help those who are doing their best to help you.

In many instances, the co-operating manufacturers of the HOME TOWN LEAGUE use materials made or grown in this immediate vicinity in making their products. In other instances, they employ people who live here and spend money here. In all instances, they are spending money in your home town to advertise their products. Directly or indirectly, every member-manufacturer means something to you. It is only fair that you should mean something to him.

Your home town - - with its industries, schools, churches and stores - - was built by the teamwork of hard-working people. Today, it needs YOUR support. Buy HOME TOWN LEAGUE goods. They contribute to employment, to better business, to the continued growth of this community.
